

Gompa and Tantric Temple Construction Status, Jan 2011.

The following is a visual update on the construction status of the Gompa and Tantric Temple. The tantric temple is scheduled for completion this year with possible opening ceremony in the early fall. The Gompa construction is largely completed and all commitments under the Building Code and sign off on the building permit occurred last year. There is some final finishing work and updates for disability access yet to be done.

The internal finish work for the Tantric Temple will be done this year and the walkway construction will be initiated.

The main entrance to the Gompa. Entranceway is completed.
The dormitory on the left with rooms for about 30 and 3 washrooms has been completed.

View from road of the front of the Gompa.

Full side view from road showing all three stories

View of Gompa from Tantric temple. Dormitory can be seen on right.

Coffee and tea preparation area on second floor. Renovated library can be seen on right.

Library was renovated last year.

Eating area renovations were completed two years ago.

Sitting and meeting room on the second floor with view of Copper Mountain.

Main floor Washroom. Allows some support for disabled persons.

The kitchen was completely renovated last year. View from the entrance.

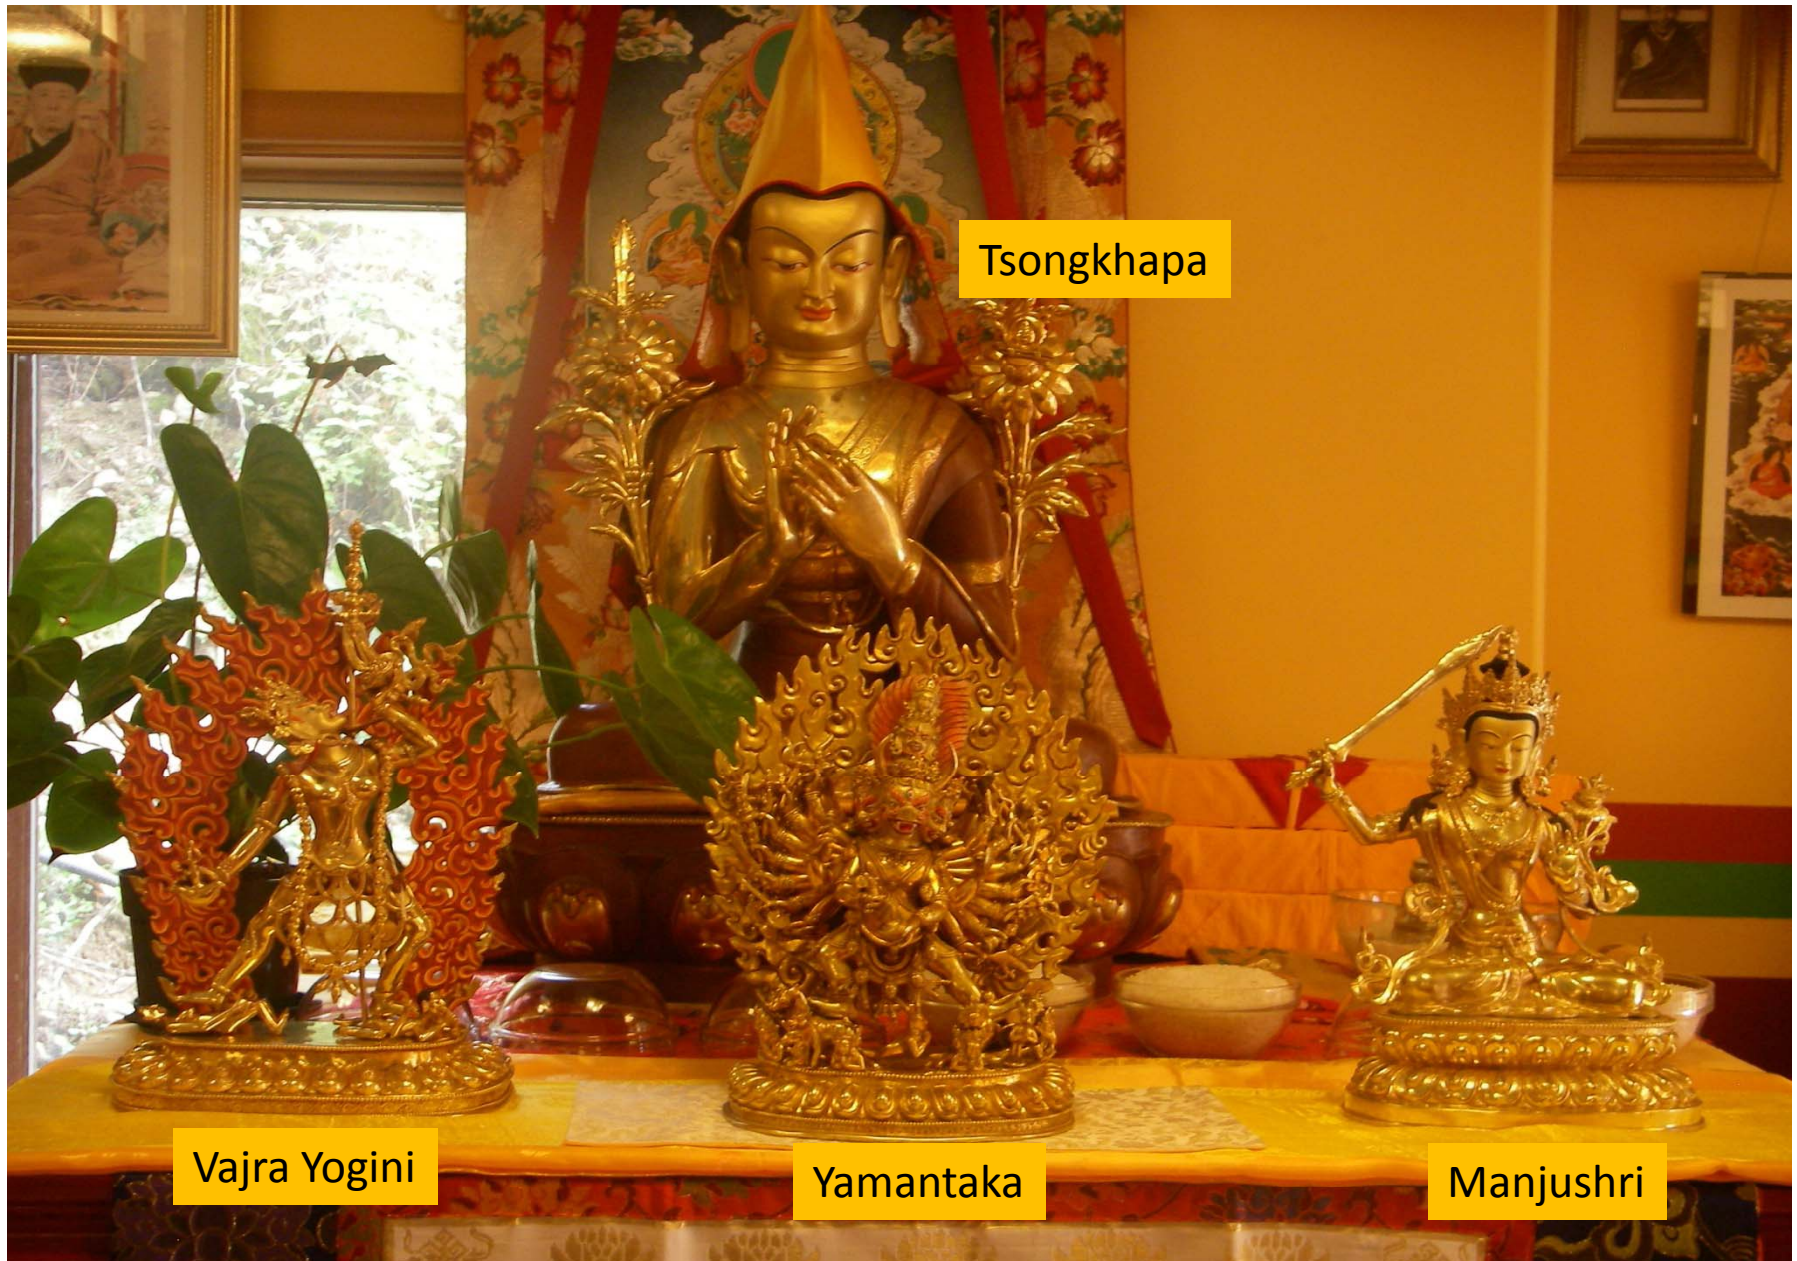

View of the kitchen from outside wall, new stoves, new pull out drawers & open shelving.

View of Gompa Shrine room from entrance.

Gompa Shrine Room from outside window. Shrine room renovations completed four years ago.

Tsongkhapa

Vajra Yogini

Yamantaka

Manjushri

Some of the images purchased for the Gompa and tantric Temple.

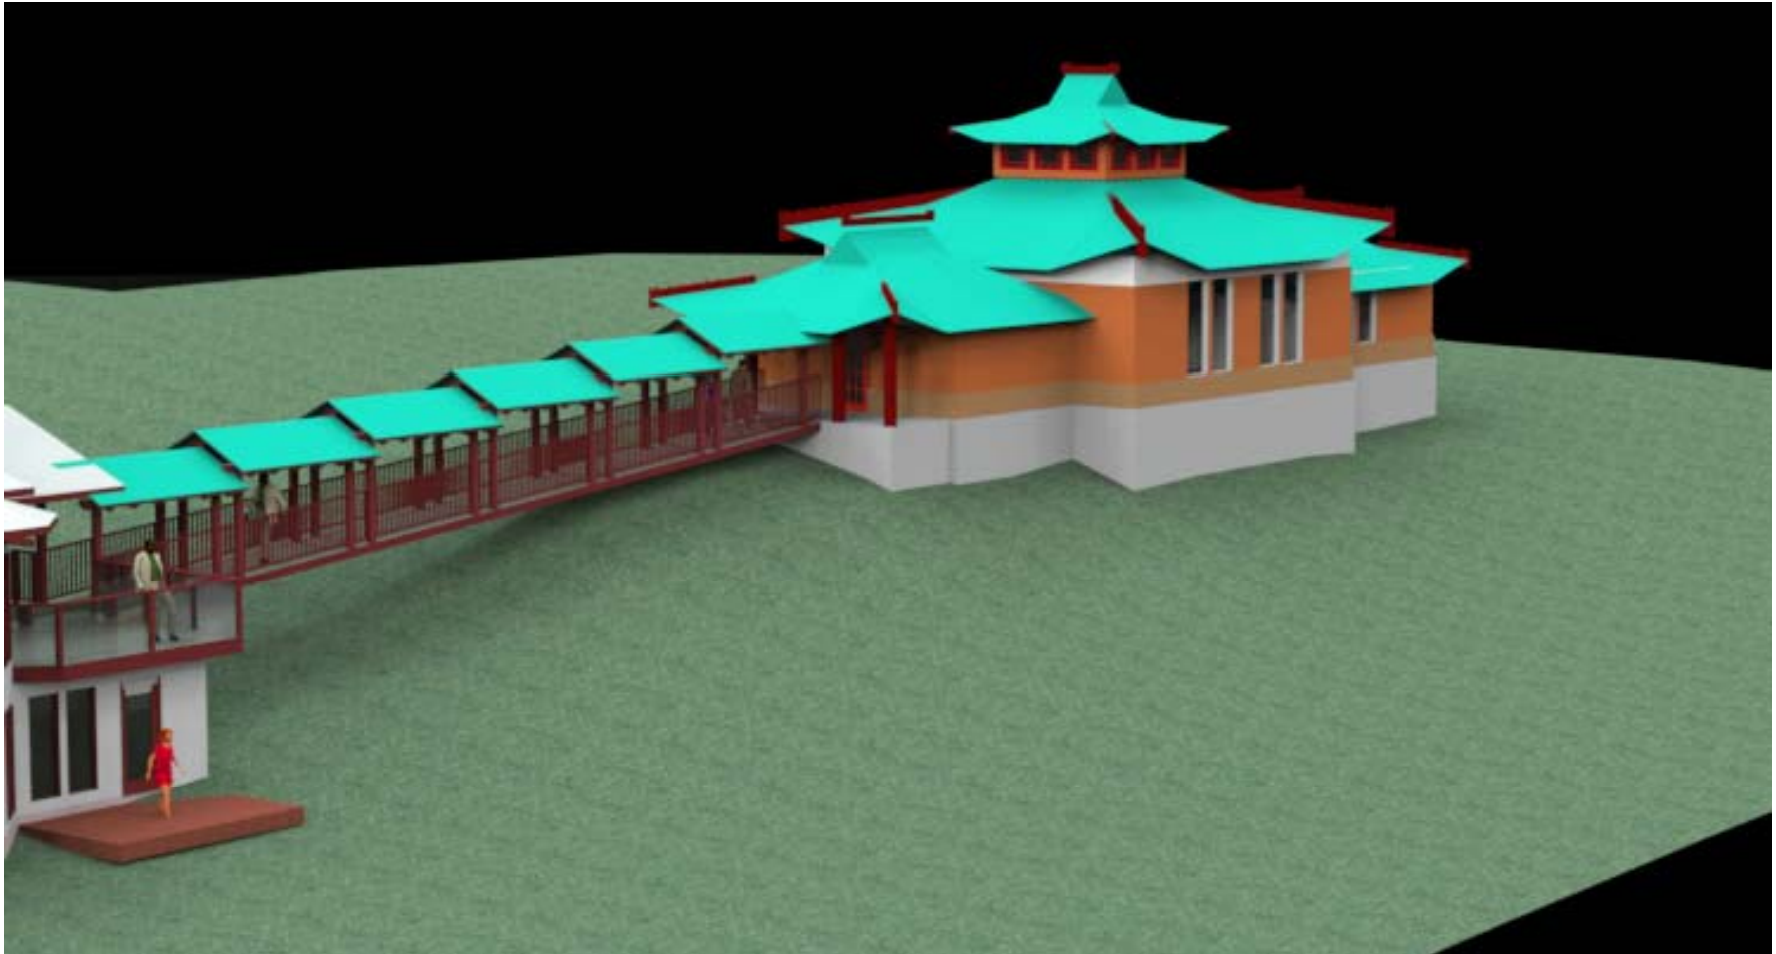

Tantric temple, view from back deck of Gompa, Nov. 2010.

Tantric temple: view from road. Nov. 2010.

Tantric temple: Architects drawing.

Architects Drawing: completed tantric Temple with covered walkway to Gompa.